Hamas rejects Israeli offer

DAMASCUS (AFP) — The fishamic Resistance Movement, Habas, on Saturday rejected an Israeli offer to free its imprisoned fourier. Shelich Ahmad Yassin, provided he renounced "terrorism." Himas said in a statement released to Damascus: "The enemies well now that he (Sheikh Yasain) rejects their conditions and would rather is in prison than fulfil their wishes." Hamas called for "the immediate, unconditional release, of Sheikh Yasain," describing as "rideculus," the conditional offer made by Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said on Israeli Television Friday. Mr. Peres said that if the Hamas Gleader "calls on his people to halt terrorism and states that he supports peace I will favour his release and even dialogue with him." Hamas said the Israeli proposal "shows that the health of the sheikl is in danger and the Israeli government fears the reactions of the Palestinians and Hamas if, God forbid, anything happens toflum." Hamas, a rival to the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) in the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank, is violently opposed to the Middle East peace process and the Israeli-PLO autonomy dealstruck in Washington in September.

Jordan allows free entry and exit for West Bankers

Only condition is that they fold valid return permits

AMMAN (J.T.) - The government on Tuesday announced new rules that allow Palestinians from the araeli-occupied West Bank ree entry and residence in the Kingdom as long as they hold valid permits to return home.

The move came a day after Interior Minister Salameh Hammad said that restrictions imposed six years ago to prevent a massive Pulestinian influx into Jordan were no longer feasible in view of the impending autonomy for Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza

The new measures, which take effect immediately, were announced by Mr. Hammad on Saturday.

The measures are: . Cancellation of previous restrictions governing the entr-ince into Jordan of youths ged 26 to 36. They will be lowed into the Kingdom thout having to acquire prior proval from the ministry's low-up and inspection de-tment provided they hold

Gammoh: Paris economic deal doesn't clash with Jordan accord

Others see it with fundamental shortcoming

By Nermeen Murad Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN - Minister of Finance Sami Gammoh on Saturday credited the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) with enhancing the symbolism of Palestinian authority through the signing of the PLO-Israel economic agreement without negating the eco-nomic accord that the Palesti-nians signed with Jordan in

Mr. Gammoh, in an interview with the Jordan Times, said the government's initial reading of the Paris agreement "shows that the PLO has gained more than anticipated... it is a step forward and progress has been achieved." The documents, of which SANAA (Agencies) - Reports conflicted on Saturday over the situation in Yemen. Some reports said violence had ebbed while others said the threat of civil war was looming. The Associated Press said the threat of evil war had receded as rival northern and southern armies reportedly halted three days of heavy fighting amid an Egyptian mediation effort But reports from the south said tension there was high and troops of both sides were on a combat footing.

Jordan to send lone observer to Doha meeting

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — Jordan will continue to abstain from an active role in the Middle East peace process until the Kingdom's demand for an end to the interceptions of Aqaba-bound vessels is satisfactorily met. officials said Saturday.

They said that the Kingdom, in line with this decision, was sending a lone observer to this week's meeting in Doha. Qatar, of the multilateral working group on Middle East disarmament.

Jordan sent an observer to a meeting early this month of the multilateral working group on water in Muscat, Oman, and made sure that its complaints over the damaging Aqaba inspections were heard and registered before the final statement of the meeting was issued. The Jordanian observer abstained from taking any position on the final statement. Officials said Saturday the government was waiting for moves on the ground in implementation of the U.S.accepted Jordanian proposal to replace the Red Sea inspections with an Aqaba-based verification regime to monthly the international sanctions against Iraq before taking a decision on returning to full participation in the peace talks, whether bilateral or Information Minister Jawad Al Anani said last week that while Jordan welcomed the U.S. acceptance as removing "a major obstacle" in the peace process, the Lloyds Register arrangement was not complete and that Amman was awaiting final agreement and implementation before accepting to return to the peace negotiations.

PLO sees statehood coming in small doses

By Dominic Evans

CAIRO - When Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) Chairman Yasser Arafat finally enters the Palestinian self-rule areas of Gaza and Jericho he will not do so as head of state. But in practice Israel has already ceded to his people many trappings of embryonic statehood. The Palestinians will have their own passports, postage stamps and a separate international telephone code. There will be a Palestinian police force, airline, radio and televi-

"It is a start, not a complete start, and it does not fulfil all our hopes, but it is a beginning in the right direction," PLO negotiator Nabil Shaath said

Statehood has been the aim of the Palestinian movement for decades, firstly in the whole of historic Palestine, then on any corner of "liberated land," then in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and now in the two self-rule areas.

The two areas may amount to a tiny fraction of Palestine before the creation of Israel but the Palestinian movement has come a long way since it de-clared, in 1988, a wholly hypothetical independent state alongside Israel.

It made the declaration in Algiers, a'most 3,000 kilometres from Jerusalem. Many states recognised it but Israel, the country that mattered most, turned a deaf ear.

Now, step by step over the years of negotiations since the Madrid conference in 1991, the Palestinians have chipped away at Israel's long resistance to the statehood concept.

"We are a people under occupation who are getting our independence in very small doses," Dr. Shaath said.

On Thursday Israel and the PLO agreed to set May 4 as a target date for signing a final agreement on the details of self-rule for Gaza and the West Bank region of Jericho.

Israeli troop withdrawals and deployment of Palestinian police should start within 24 hours of the signing.

Despite Israeli insistence throughout the months of tough negotiations that autonomy does not mean sovereignty, Palestinians think the details lay the groundwork for a Palestinian state just around the corner.

Dr. Shaath said the autonomy plans for Gaza and Jericho would bear fruit immediately through visible signs that the Palestinians were in charge of their own affairs.

"People will start seeing Palestinian ports, airports, television stations, economic institutions. They will see a real opportunity to develop their own future," he said.

But, aware of the right-wing pressure on his Israeli negotiat-ing partners, he was careful not to go too far.

"We are not going to use the passport indirectly to claim that we have sovereignty and that we have a full independent state, because we don't," he

"It (the passport) will be clearly marked so as not to give the impression that it is the passport of a fully independent state because we are not yet," he added.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, also anxious to fend off the same right-wing criticisms, said of the concessions: "I admit that we were a little bit generous."

"Why not? This still does not constitute a decision either on a Palestinian state or on the permanent arrangement," he told Israel army radio.

Supporters of Mr. Arafat are gambling that these signs of statehood will win over the Palestinian opposition, which argues that Gaza and Jericho is not enough.

Dr. Shaath said he was encouraged by statements on Wednesday from the founder of the Muslim fundamentalist group Hamas, which is opposed to the autonomy

Sheikh Ahmad Yassin indicated his organisation was moving away from its hardline rejection of Israel and might stop its suicide bombings of Israeli targets.
This would make coexistence with the PLO easier once Palestinians take control in Gaza and Jericho.

Dr. Shaath also said Israel had withdrawn a number of demands this week which the PLO had felt would have infringed on the scope of Palestinian jurisdiction in the two

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mysterious illness suffered by many U.S. soldiers of the 1992 Gulf war is real and serious, a panel of experts concluded Friday, but they said it is impossi-ble to define the disorder or pinpoint its cause.

The National Institutes of Health (NIH) committee said the group of disorders loosely referred to as the "Gulf war syndrome" involves a variety of symptoms that may have been caused by any or all of a combination of stress, chemical exposures or parasites.

"There is no single disease or syndrome apparent, but rather multiple illnesses with overlapping symptoms and causes," said a committee report released at a news conference. The group called for "rigorous" medical research to define the illness and to establish a treatment plan.

Accord holds out promises of changes for Palestinians

By James Martone The Associated Press

CAIRO - A day after the Israel-Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) autonomy accord is signed Wednesday, the Palestinians of the downtrodden Gaza Strip will be greeting sons and brothers freed from Israeli jails and seeing their own police patrolling the streets.

PLO chief negotiator Nabil Shaath described the scene Friday as he laid out details of how Palestinians' lives will change once self-rule take effect in Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho under the accord.

Dr. Shaath described it as "a new dawning for our people." But he also was cautious as he talked to reporters Thursday and Friday, several times stressing that the Palestinians were not yet assured of getting their dream of an independent

"It's not the realisation of all opes," he said. "But it is the beginning on the correct road.' In Israel, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres called the agreement "a courageous and correct and fair step" towards ending the decades-long conflict between Israel and the Palestinians.

He said the agreement und not create a Palestinian state - which Israel opposes - but set aside three years for negotiating a solution to the conflict and the future of other areas of the West Bank not covered in the Gaza-Jericho accord.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak announced the Wednesday signing date after meetings Thursday among Mr. Peres, PLO chief Yasser Arafat and U.S. Secretary of State

Warren Christopher. Mr. Mubarak said only a few details have yet to be worked out, and Dr. Shaath said the negotiators would use the time from Sunday through Tuesday to wrap up the final wording. The signing will come almost eight months after the two sides reached an initial agreement calling for Israel to withdraw from Gaza and the West Bank to make way for limited Palestinian autonómy. Dr. Shaath said the Gaza-

Jericho accord will mean Palestinians can have their own airline and the right fo fish freely in the Mediterranean

They will also have postage stamps, an area code separate from Israel and travel documents marked with the word "Passport." However, the documents also will say "laissez passer," a French term for travel papers for those without

Dr. Shaath said the most aoticeable change will be the departure of Israeli troops ccept in and around Jewish settlements — and their replacement by 9,000 Palestinian police. Some 6,000 will arrive in the first two weeks.

An international force will arijive to oversee the handover of power from Israel to the Palestinians. Dr. Shaath said. Its numbers and exact role still were being worked out. But Dr. Shaath described the major change as psychological when the people see a Palestinian authority is running their day-to-day lives.

He described it as the Palestinians having "a real opportunity to develop their future. We will have full power of legislation, basic laws, all regulation in every walk of Still, for all his obvious enthusiasm, Dr. Shaath pointed out the agreement will not be "real" until it is actually signed.

Among details still to be negotiated is release of all the more than 8,000 Palestinians jailed by Israel. The agreement calls for freeing 5,000 within two weeks, and Dr. Shaath said an agreement of "general principle" covers most others.

As he explained it, this calls for detainees belonging to groups opposed to the peace talks to be freed if they sign a pledge supporting the PLO in its moves towards peace.

This will include the radical Islamic Resistance Movement Hamas, which the PLO is working to bring into the peace process to avoid conflicts among Palestinians. The release of other prisoners - ones whom [srael opposes freeing because they committed violent crimes - is still being negotiated, Dr. Shaath said.

Jericho awaits signs of change

By Nejla Sammakia Agence France Presse

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank — The residents of this calm oasis town realise they are about to enter history as the first Palestinians to experience self-rule in the occupied West Bank, But they are still confused about what it all

New road layouts and freshly built checkpoints are about the only evidence of the change to come when self-rule is launched after Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) Chairman Yasser Arafat sign the final agreement in Cairo next Wednesday.

"In September, everyone thought all would be ready in two days," said Adnan Hammad, a PLO official from Jericho, referring to the euphoria here after the Israeli-Palestinian peace accord was announced last September

Now there is disbelief. they don't think anything will happen.

"The people need concrete proof, not to think and analyse it all. They are just ready for new clean schools, roads, hospitals." But the new authority does not even have suitable accommodation yet.

Jericho, a green valley nestling between sandy mountains, has a generous share of banana and orange orchards, paim groves and modest, neat homes with high walls. It has only one official building, along with a couple of cultural centres and a busy market place.

Soon after the autonomy deal is clinched, an initial 300-strong Palestinian police force is due to arrive here, and PLO officials are expected to fly in from their Tunis headquarters to take over temporarily until elections are held, maybe next October.

As autonomy gets underway Mr. Arafat is expected to appear on the scene, if only for a visit. Some say he will be put up in a rustic house on a slope overlooking a mosque and quaint cottages, belonging to a wealthy Jericho land-

It is still not known where the leadership, initially com-posed of 15 officials and hundreds of employees, will set up office. A few residents here believe they may move into an old folks' home still under construction.

"It is in your hand, Sir, to say your word about this separation between the father and his children and grandchildren," said the appeal. "A complete generation is growing up hearing about freedom, humanity and justice, but we see nothing of it except some bright words said every now and then while their hope is still suffering in Syria."

"Return the smiles to the faces of our children," it implored. "Return hope to hearts of our mothers, give us back

According to Mrs. Fayez, no Arab government -- "not even Saudi Arabia" - is influential enough to get her brother released. "The people who can do something are the U.S. and European governments and perhaps the United Nations," she said.

Mr. Fayez, who was released in January 1993, shared a cell with Mr. Jamaani in the Al Mazza prison outside Damascus -- known as the "Bastille of the Middle East" since it holds mostly long-term political prisoners - for more than he himself was released on Jan.

Thai princess visits NHF

AMMAN — Her Royal Highness Princeses Galyani Vadhana of Thailand visited Noor Al Hussein Foundation (NHF) recently where she was briefed by senior NHF officials on the foundations development projects. The Thai princess also toured NHF's Jordan Design and Trade Center which includes special selections of woolen rugs, embroidered home furnishings, ceramics, glassware, basketry, fashionable clothing, wrought iron turniture, personal accessories and Islamic calligraphy items — all designed and produced by more than 3,000 Jordanian crafts men and women. Princess Galyani expressed her admiration of NHF's development endeavours and the high level of craftsmanship exhibited by the Jordan Design and Trade Center. The Princess presented NHF with cash donations from herself and on behalf of the group of Thai visitors accompanying her.

Cabinet reviews recent events

AMMAN (Petra) - Prime Minister Abdul Salam Majali Saturday briefed the Cabinet on the visit to Jordan Thursday by Syrian President Hafez Al Assad who arrived to offer condolences to His Majesty King Hussein on the passing of Queen Zein Al Sharaf, the Queen Mother

Dr. Maiali also briefed the Cabinet on the outcome of a meeting between King Hussein and U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher in London last week, which resulted in the United States accepting a lordanian proposal on a new land-based system for verifying compliance with the international sanctions against Iraq.

The acceptance came after months of deliberations which prompted King Hussein to link the Kingdom's return to the Washington-backed peace talks with Israel to an end to the sea-based inspections of all Jordan-bound vessels.

The prime minister also talked about the Israel-Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) agreement signed in Paris Friday.

The accord links relations between Israel and the future autonomous areas on customs tariffs, monetary policy, labour, taxation, agriculture, fuel prices, manufacturing, insurance and tourism.

A statement that followed the Cabinet's regular session said that the ministers had a first reading of the Israel-PLO accord, which, it said, would be discussed fully by the joint Jordanian-Palestinian Higher Committee.

According to the statement, the Minister of Transport Adib Halaseh submitted a report on the outcome of the Syrian-Jordanian land transport and maritime transport companies' meetings in Damascus and his talks with Syrian government officials.

Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Talal Al Hassan presented a report on his talks with the president of Mali last week, covering various scopes of bilateral relations.

Minister of Communications and Postal Affairs Tareq Suheimat presented a report on his visit to Egypt where he led Jordan's delegation to the Afro-Arab meeting on communications.

According to the statement the Cabinet also listened to a report by Justice Minister Taher Hikmat on the outcome of the Arab justice ministers

Council appeals to Arab leader to avert civil war in Yemen

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

CONTRACTOR OF TOWNS

AMMAN - The Council of Islamic Organisations (CIO) and Societies in Jordan Saturday cailed on Arab leaders to intervene urgently in Yemen to avert all out civil war in that country.

In an appeal addressed to Arab kings and heads of states, the council said it was an Islamic duty to intervene in Yemen and reconcile the feuding northerners and southerners in the country "who are annihilating each

In the first such appeal by a Jordanian organisation on the casis in Yemen, where reports said hundreds were killed or wounded in three days of clashes, the council warned that "a catastrophe was looming in the skies of Yemen that could possibly lead to a dreadful war."

Jordan tried to mediate the Yemeni crisis, which is rooted in political differences between the leaders of the former North and South Yemen which merged in May 1990, and hosted the signing of a reconciliation and reform agreement between them. But the accord failed to end the crisis.

Subsequently Jordan said it was withdrawing from a military commission entrusted with separating the southern and northern armies which remain separate entities despite the merger.

Egypt and the United Arab Emirates (UAE) are trying to end the crisis, but a precondition for the success of the effort is a guarantee that the Yemeni leaders would abide by the agreement signed in Amman.

The one-page statement issued by the Jordanian council said: "the triba! and community leaders... and parties are on armed alert for a war which will have no mercy for anyone, big or small." Arab inaction, the statement said, will prove to the failed to fight "the occupier (Israel) and liberate their land, the Arabs have decided to fight among themselves. "The situation (in Yemen) is very grave and we warn of an impending disaster of an unprecedented level," said the council, an umbrella body for all Islamic institutions and societies in Jordan.

"We wish, demand and request that the Arab kings and heads of state visit Yemen and talk with the political, military and tribal leaders and other influential people there to put an end to the revolt and fire there," it added.

"The root cause of all problems, conflicts, bloody events and unrest in the Arab countries is the absence of justice and disobedience of God's teachings," the statement said.

It told the Arab leaders: 'You are responsible in front of God and the people to save the people... and we beseech God to save the people and make you glorious in

The statement was signed by the council's secretarygeneral, Abdul Latif Sbeihi. and copies were sent to all Arab countries, including Jordan. It was the second time in one month that the council issued appeals for end to conflicts in Muslim countries.

In a statement issued early this month, the council outlined a proposal to end the bloodshed in Afghanistan under the auspices of the Organisation of Islamic Conference (OIC). That proposal called for an OIC committee. to work in coordination with representatives of all Afghan factions towards ending the power struggle there through elections in 10 months time. It also urged the oil-rich Gulf states to extend financial support to ensure the success of

he self-rule agreement between Israel and the 'alestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) in airo next week, focus is rapidly shifting to mascus, where U.S. Secretary of State Warn Christopher arrived yesterday, probably arrying an İsraeli "global" peace plan which vould entertain a phased Israeli withdrawal com the Golan Heights in return for a gradual compalisation of bilateral relations between the wo countries.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin set the one for the new round of peace effort on the Byrian track by telling his people last week that is government would be willing to dismantle braeli settlements on the Golan Heights and Her meaningful territorial concessions to vamascus in return for real peace. The Israeli Her, coupled with the standing proposal to aploy U.S. troops on the demarcation lines stween Syria and Israel, could give the reewed effort for peace a meaningful boost, thich should be welcomed by all parties.

It is not easy to tell what the results of Mr. Thristopher's visit to Damascus will be until la Syrian government has an adequate opporenity to examine the old-new Israeli ideas. lost probably. Syrian President Hafez Al ssad would not want to take any Israeli bait as and would try to strengthen his negotiating sition as much as possible. Syria has always led for a crystal-clear commitment from Stael to withdraw completely from the occusied Syrian territory and to dismantle all raeli settlements based on the full implementation of U.N. Security Council resolutions 242 and 338.

What would be worth watching is how Damascus will attempt to blend in policy terms is long-standing pledge to seek a compreheneive peace in the area with handling new lements in the Israeli offer.

There is a meeting of the minds on this score between Amman and Damascus and this has and Jordan to slow down the pace of its peace alks with Israel until there is marked progress va all tracks of the negotiations. Should Mr. Christopher's trip to Damascus prove successal, there can be no doubt that Jordan's track would, in due course, see a revival, especially now that the Aqaba blockade is on the way to effective resolution.

ARABIC PRESS COMMENTARIES

LL INDICATIONS are that the Middle East peace process gathering pace, and the flurry of diplomatic activity in the turday. In light of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's event statements concerning peace with Syria and the coming of the region by the U.S. Secretary of State Warren pristopher, one can only expect from the Arab countries wolved in the peace process to double their efforts to ordinate their stands and take a united position with regard the various issues related to the negotiations with Israel. if the daily. The Arab states are called on to be vigilant and ware of Israel's manoeuvres at this juncture because the raelis are known to be seeking separate deals with different rab parties, warned the daily. It said that Israeli leaders anot be taken for granted and Israel has never backed its words with deeds. The paper said the Jewish state was never committed to the requirements of a permanent peace and international legitimacy. Arab economic boycott of Israel

The beginning

PALESTINIAN INFORMAL boycott to Jewish economic activities started at the grass root level as early as 1936, when Palestinians realised that the Jewish Agency was busy building industries to create jobs for Jewish emmigrants in its bid for massing Jews from all over the world to establish a Zionist state in Palestine, which was under British mandate.

However, the Arab economic boycott to Israel was formally adopted by the Arab League in May 1951, when a main Arab boycott head-office was established in Damascus. Each individual Arab country was required to establish its own boycott branch office. The Arab states offices were attached to the ministry of economy, or the ministry of finance, or the ministry of defence as the case may be in each country. Coordination and main decisions to enter firms into the blacklist or remove them were the responsibility of the main office in Damascus and an annual meeting was held there for

The boycott was open-ended. No time limit was set.

Methods and objectives

Arab economic boycott of Israel started with the establishment of the Jewish state in 1948. The boycott was not imposed on economic considerations, or as a measure of trade protection from Israeli competition. It was imposed for political purposes, namely to punish Israel for occupying Arab and, and to weaken the Israeli economy, which supports the military might of the Israeli armed forces.

The Arab boycott of Israel can be divided into two categories: negative boycott which means blocking any exchange of goods and services between the Arabs and Israel; and positive boycott which means inducing third parties to refrain from investing in Israel or financing its economy. The purpose of negative, sometimes called primary boycott, is to deprive the Israeli economy from benefitting from the opportunity which the vast Arab markets can provide if they were open to Israel. The purpose of positive, also called secondary boycott, is to deprive the Israeli economy from foreign investments, which could help to strengthen Israel and enable it to sustain its occupation of Arab land, or undertake further expansionary adventures at the expense of Arab lands.

The primary boycott of Israel was partially broken in two major instances: One is the Israeli access to the markets of the West Bank and Gaza Strip since 1967, and another when Egypt normalised its political and economic relations with Israel following the Camp David accords. Aside from those two incidents, it is believed that Israel was able to send small amounts of its products to the Arab markets through third countries after falsely labeling the products as "made in yprus" or made in Greece. Some Israeli sources claim that $500 million worth of Israeli products found their way to Arab markets, including Israeli inputs in West Bank products allowed to reach the Arab markets.

The Unified law of boycott

The Arab League Council in its 22nd session adopted a unified text of law of boycott of Israel, which was consequently adopted in each Arab country, consisting of 12 articles as

All national and foreign companies and firms having interest or branches or general agents in Israel are to be considered persons and legal bodies that cannot be dealt with as indicated by the council of ministers or the authority designated by the council of ministers, in accordance with recommendations of the annual liaison officers conference.

Goods, commodities and products of all kinds and categories, together with all financial instruments and any other Israeli movable property, are not allowed to enter or be exchanged in the country. All goods and products made in Israel or having Israeli inputs, irrespective of their ratio, will be treated as Israeli goods or products, whether they came directly from Israel or through any indirect way.

Goods and products reexported from Israel, or made outside Israel for exportation on its behalf, or on behalf of any person or legal body mentioned in Article 1, are to be treated just like Israeli products.

In situations specified by the competent authorities, the importer must furnish a ertificate of origin, showing the following information:

a) The country of origin (which should not be Israel). b) That no Israeli inputs what so ever are included in the composition of the product, irrespective of ratio.

All concerned authorities should take the necessary measures to prevent materials specified by the liaison officers from being exported to foreign countries if it was proved that those countries reexport such material to Israel.

Articles 2, 3 and 4 are applicable to commodities that may enter free zones or be exported from those free zones.

The same applies to all commodities that may be brought to the country or may cross its territories which are destined for Israel, or to any person or organisation residing in Israel, but without prejudice with any international agreement that the country may be party to.

It is forbidden to display goods or commodities referred to in Article 2, or sell, or buy or own such goods. Barter or donation is to be treated like sale or purchase.

Those who violate articles 1, 2, or 3 are to be punished by imprisonment with hard work for a period not less than three years. Simultaneously with imprisonment, the violaters may be also fined by up to £5,000. If the crime was committed by a legal body, the sentence should be applied to the natural person(s) who committed the violations related to the legal

In all cases, the subject products are to be confiscated, together with the transportation means used to commit the violation, if the owners were aware of the violation.

Punishment mentioned in Article 7, except for confiscation, will be pardoned for one or more of the offenders, if he or they informed the government of the crime they are party to, provided the information led to the discovery of the crime they were about to participate in.

A summary of the verdict condemning violations of this law should be displayed, at the expense of the convicted persons, in large letters at the door of his business, including factories and stores, for a period of three months.

Removing the above summary or hiding it in any way is punishable by imprisonment or a fine not exceeding £20 or by one of these two punishments.

A reward of 20 per cent of the value of goods subject to verdict against crimes specified in this law should be paid as incentive to any person who gave the information leading the discovery of the violation, whether he is a government employee or otherwise. The reward may be higher if local laws specify higher rewards. If the credit goes to more than one person, the reward will be divided among them in proportion to their efforts.

Employees charged with the responsibility of enforcing this law are authorised to present evidence of crimes committed in violation of its provisions.

All laws and regulations that contradict this law are hereby declared null and void.

Present status of boycott

Officially, there is nothing new about the Arab boycott of Israel until this moment. No decision have been made yet. However, the atmosphere is different. After the Gulf War, Kuwait started to think of the unthinkable. It unofficially started to ignore the secondary boycott. After starting the peace negotiations, America started to put pressure on the Arab countries, such as Jordan and the Gulf states, to lift the boycott as a confidence building measure, but so far nothing in return is being offered.

The annual meeting of Arab boycott liaison officers in Damascus late in 1993 was called off and postponed indefinitely. Observes thought that the cancellation of the meeting happened under American diplomatic pressure and that no further meetings will take place.

Economists believe that the removal of the seconomy boycott of Israel is very important to the Israeli economy in that it will increase foreign investments in Israel. Professor Stanley Fischer, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) believes that the secondary boycott has deprived Israel of more the $2 billion a year of potential foreign investments.

This past weekend, when Serbian forces at first failed to meet the terms of the NATO ultimatum to stop shelling Gorazde, Mr. Akashi again blocked NATO commanders' plans for immediate bombing. Once again he relied on false Serbian promises of early com-

Similarly, Serbia should not be exempt from the NATO ultimatum. Sources of supply for the aggressors should be prime targets for air strikes. Surely by now the West Gorazde, after all the other cruelty, makes it certain that the Serbian nation will bear the stigma of the demagogues who led the aggression, as Germany was marked by the Nazis. But there are no Churchillian heroes in the West: only weaklings who resisted too little, too late.

Peace the surprise winner in S. Africa's elections

By David Tucker

JOHANNESBURG - Despite bombings blamed on die-hard whites, South Africa's historic election week has been surprisingly peace-

In a country where 15,000 people have died in political unrest in the four years it has taken to dismantle apartheid, the election week death toll up to Friday was just 34.

"People expected the worst, but it failed to materialise," said Vanessa Barolsky, a researcher with Peace Action, an independent violence monitoring group.

Peace monitors and police in the killing fields of Kwazulu-Natal, where more than 2,000 people died in political violence last year, described the all-race elections as a victory for peace. "Before the election things had built up to such a peak. We expected intimidation and violence to be at a high level ... But things have calmed down a great deal," said captain Kim Van Niekerk of the Natal security "It's been unbelievable...

It sets the ground-work for a very healthy working relationship for all South Africans," said Anne McKay, spokeswoman for the regional peace committee.

The week began badly. with a car bomb killing nine people on Sunday in central Johannesburg, South Africa's commercial capital. Worse was to come.

The election bombing campaign, blamed on whites opposed to black majority rule, killed 10 people at a taxi rank in the Johannesburg suburb of Germiston on Monday. A bomb thrown into a Pretoria restaurant later in the day, killed two more people. A car bomb at South Africa's biggest airport, Jan Smuts outside Johannesburg, wounded 16 people, including foreigners, on Wednesday, second day of polling in the elections.

The police response was swift. They detained 34 suspects and seized arms caches. Nelson Mandela, whose African National Congress (ANC) is expected to win the elections, praised the white-led police on Friday for their quick response. "The ease with which the police have made a breakthrough... I think already we have defused the situation," he said. Polling continued for an extra day on Friday in six former homelands where millions were unable to vote, mainly because of bureaucratic bungling.

The death toll, which included deaths in Kwazulu-Natal, was substantially lower than the average weekly toll during the run-up to the elections when dozens were dying every day.

"It doesn't mean it is the end of conflict but it is an important step in establishing long-term peace," said Ms. Barolsky. "People finally had the opportunity to express themselves through some means other than violence. It shows that South Africans want democracy," she said. Political analyst Bill Sass said he believed the major factor in curbing the violence had been the participation in the elections of the Zulu-

dominated Inkatha Freedom Party and the right-wing white Freedom Front. "This meant that neither the rightwing nor Zulu extremists could mobilise to oppose the of violence in four years since reformist white President F. W. de Klerk unbanned opposition groups and began dismantling apartheid have been blacks killed in clashes between Inkatha supporters and those of the ANC.

maniac fringe," he said. Most of the 15,000 victims

Mr. Sass said the new national unity government would need to move quickly to meet the demands of conservative whites and those of Zulu King Goodwill Zwelithini and Inkatha over the status of the Zulu monarchy.

"Extremist support is already withering on the vine but the government will need to carry on negotiations with conservative parties and offer a few concessions here and there," he said.

Mr. Sass said the small turnout at neo-Nazi Afrikaner Resistance Movement

(AWB) rallies and the arrests of the 34 rightwingers was proof the right-wing supportbase was crumbling.

The police were helped in the arrests of the bombers by people within the right wing. They (radicals) have been marginalised. Hearts and minds have turned against them. Political scientist Willem Kleynhans, well-known for his apocalyptic vision of the new South Africa, said it was a miracle that there had been so little violence during the elections, which he described as a fiasco and a farce. Mr. Kleynhans predicted more violence around the corner.

"When Mandela takes over and is unable to deliver on his election promises we will see trouble. His chickens will come home to roost," he said. "I pray God to save the new South Africa."

No American ground troops are going to Bosnia, the president said, at least until there is a settlement of the two-year war. But U.S. warplanes will enter the conflict if the Serbs defy the ultimatum.

The interests Clinton and Christopher said were at stake include preventing a spillover to other Balkan countries and upholding NATO's functions in the post-cold war era.

The United States itself is not threatened. And yet Clinton is prepared to use force. Sen. Turkish markets fall on credit rate cut financial markets fell sharply Friday after a major U.S. agency cut the country's credit rating and said another downgrade was possible.

Istanbul stock market, already jittery after the Capital Markets Board suspended the activities of eight brokers this week, shed over 816 points to 15,009 before recovering slightly in late trading to close 729.64 points or 4.6 per cent down at 15,096.68.

The 69-share index has plummeted since hitting a re-cord high of 28,883.61 on Jan.

The lira dropped to 34,600 to the dollar from Thursday's close of 33,000 and the central bank lifted its overnight money rate to 400 per cent from its 350 per cent openix will try and lift its interest rates even more as external borrowing becomes harder and the dollar keeps climbing," one

"It would not be doommongering to say that we are heading for hyperinflation with these interest rates," said Soner Dolanay, treasurer for Westdeutsche Landesbank in Istanbul.

Standard and Poor's (S.P.) cut its rating on Turkey's longterm currency debt to B-plus from BB on Thursday.

"I think we are in for a black summer as far as Turkey's economy goes, but I do not think the downgrade is particularly significant," said a dealer at a foreign bank in Istanbul. "Turkey will have more trouble borrowing abroad, but the treasury already needed to find other ways of getting money."

Prime Minister Tansu Ciller announced an austerity package on April 5 to combat inflation and reduce public deficits. She then sought help from the International Monetary Fund

Bankers said they were awaiting the outcome of talks with an IMF mission on a standby credit which would enable Turkey to return to foreign capital markets.

It is imperative that the country have access to foreign resources," an official at a state-owned bank said. "It is important to see what the IMF will demand of us. It is very likely that they will ask us to

S.P., which cut Turkey's debt rating in January, said the latest downgrade might not be the last. It said its action reflected Turkey's huge external debt, dwindling foreign exchange reserves and the fading likelihood that Ms. Ciller's austerity programme would quickly reestablish confidence. About $2.7 billion of foreign currency debt is affected by the S.P. downgrade. Official foreign reserves have fallen by more than half since the end of 1993 to $3.28 Meanwhile, foreign banks, hurt by the the failure of three banks and a snowballing financial crisis in Turkey, are seeking treasury cover for loan Marmara Bank, Impexbank and TYT Bank, facing liquida-tion after failing to meet their obligations, had foreign debts worth $320 million as of end-1993. The banks also had foreign risk exposures of around $200 million, official digures

Union Bank of Switzerland (UBS), which bankers say has the largest slice in commercial loans to Turkey, wrote to the treasury and central bank this week, urging them to undertake the foreign debts of the three banks.

"The talks are going on. I am sure we'll find a solution to this problem," said UBS spokesman Franz Raggenbass. "We are still interested in doing business with Turkey."

An executive at a leading U.s. bank said he hoped the Turkish treasury would pay back the foreign loans. Government sources said the treasury was considering some form of domestic debt rescheduling. "Foreign creditors will be pleased if we agree on such a plan," said one official. He gave no details.

The treasury is not legally obliged to reimburse foreigners for their loans to commercial banks but economists say it may decide to do so in a bid to improve Turkey's tarnished image.

of American Express Bank, also believed to have a high exposure to Turkey's commercial banks.

By end-1993, the short foreign currency positions of TYT, Marmara and Impexbank stood at $460 million, reflecting a strong tendency among Turkish banks to invest in the lira, which had in past years depreciated relatively slowly against the dollar.

But the lira's loss of 56 per cent of its dollar value this year has forced banks to close the dollar gaps in their liabilities. Many have more than halved their short positions.

The government has tried to restore confidence in the financial system by amending the central bank law to lay on a "lifeboat" for banks which find themselves in trouble.

But bankers say the law, which lets the central bank extend loans of up to twice a bank's equity, may be insufficient because many Turkish banks have low capital adequa-

Japan's Hata studies ways to stem yen rise

TOKYO (R) — Japan's new Prime Minister Tsutomo Hata held an emergency meeting with ministers Saturday to discuss ways to halt the yen's rise and resolve trade tensions with Washington, a government official said.

Although Mr. Hata appeared to be giving priority to economic issues, one official said little could be decided without Finance Minister Hirohisa Fujii who left earlier on Saturday for France to attend an annual meeting of the Asian Development Bank.

"They decided to go ahead even though the finance minister was not able to attend," said the finance official. There's a limit to what can be done without the key economic minister.

Mr. Hata formed Japan's first minority government in 39 years on Thursday after the ruling coalition's biggest partner, the Socialist Party, walked out in the wake of a power struggle between conservative and leftist camps.

Analysts say Mr. Hata probably be forced to call elections after the national budget for 1994/95, now four weeks late, is passed through parliament. The current session ends on June 30.

Although a general election is not due until summer 1997, expections are high that Mr.

Arab economy growing moderately in '93-'94 — report

ABU DHABI (AFP) — The economies of Arab countries are expected to grow mod-erately this year after a slowdown in the wake of the Gulf war, an official report has said.

The annual Arab Economic Report, distributed by the Arab Monetary Fund (AMF), added that they had probably grown moderately last year as well hased on projections. Fi-gures for 1993 were not available.

In current prices, the combined Arab gross domestic product (GDP) stood at $483 billion in 1992 compared with $440 billion in 1991, it said.

In real prices, the GDP grew by only 0.2 per cent annually between 1990 and 1992 due to a sharp decline in the economies of Iraq and Kuwait. Excluding the two countries, the Arab GDP grew by 5.2 per cent, the report said.

"The Arab economy is expected to register moderate growth rates in 1993 and 1994 deterioration in the real per capita income in the Arab World," said the report, prepared jointly by the Abu Dhabi-based AMF, the Organisation of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, (OAPEC) and the Arab Fund for Economic and Social De-

"But this should be coupled with a continuation of the reform programmes adopted by some Arab countries and expansion of such programmes in the countries which are adopting partial reforms," the report pointed out.

The 510-page report, which covers economic and social developments in the 22-member Arab League for 1992, said real per capita income had grown by only around one per cent annually since 1975. It said this was due to a slowdown in the economy after the oil boom and a rapid popula-

The bulk of the growth in per capita income was recorded in the countries which are enforcing reforms while growth was negative in most oil producing members. Growth stood at 2.3 per cent in 12 Arab states while it registered a negative 2.1 per cent in the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) and the three remaining key oil producers— Algeria, Iraq and Libya. "Looking back at the per capita income during the past decades, we find that the rapid growth recorded during the 1970s started to disappear in the following decade while the deterioration which occurred in 1990 and 1991 was not offset in 1992," the report said. "As a result, per capita income grew only modestly after nearly 17 years of development efforts."

Egypt, Jordan, Yemen, Tunisia, Morocco, Mauritania and other Arab countries have introduced reforms to tackle their economies, which are suffering from accumulating debt, slow growth, unemployment and deficits in their budgets and balances of payments.

The reforms gained momentum after the Gulf war slashed aid and remittances from the oil-rich region to those countries, which had heavily depended on such sources in their income. Experts expect most Arabs to press ahead with the reforms to offset the decline in aid and diversify their income SOUTCES.

"Given the continuous reform programmes in the region and the growing experience of Arab countries in facing crises, it is hoped that 1992 would have been a beginning of a new stage in the Arab economy," the report said. It said real growth in 1992 exceeded eight per cent in Jor-dan, Tunisia, Sudan, and Syria while it stood at 4.4 per cent in Egypt and 2.4 per cent in Mauritania. It plunged by more than eight per cent in Djibouti, Somalia, Lebanon and Yemen and by three per cent in Morocco mainly because of drought.

"If we exclude Iraq and Kuwait, we can say the Arab economy started to recover in 1989," it said, "The sharp decline in growth in 1991 and 1992 was due to economic problems in those two countries which suffered from large losses from the war as well as indirect losses inflicted on other Arab countries after the

NEWS IN BRIEF

Spain's interior minister resigns

MADRID (R) — Spain's Interior Minister Antonio Asuncion said Saturday he had presented his resignation to Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez over the case of a former Civil Guard head wanted on corruption allegations. The whereabouts of former director-general of the Civil Guard, Luis Roldam, remain unknown after a Madrid judge Friday ordered his arrest. "I assume my political responsibility and I have verbally presented my resignation to the prime minister. He will respond when he considers convenient," Mr. Asuncion told a news conference. He added that he expected Mr. Gonzalez to accept it unless Roldam was captured in the next few days. Mr. Asuncion would become the first major government casualty from two serious corruption scandals in the past couple of months. Former Bank of Spain Governor Mariano Rubio is being investigated for illicit stock market deals and tax evasion.

Trial sought for Italy's Bossi

ROME (R) — Italian magistrates have requested Northern League leader Umberto Bossi stand trial on charges of breaking the law on the financing of political parties, judicial sources said Saturday. Mr. Bossi was named among 37 people: magistrates want to bring to trial in connection with the so-called Enimont affair. The list also concluded former Socialist Prime Minister Bettino Craxi and ex-Christian Democrat Budget Minister Paolo Cirino Pomicino. The fiery Bossi's Northern League is set to enter government for the first time as part of the Freedom Alliance which triumphed in March 27/28 general elections. Mr. Bossi, who frequently attacked Italy's corruption-tainted political old guard, was put on a list of suspects last December over a $125,000 payment his party received from the Ferruzzi Company.

S. Korea's Kim yows to continue refor

SEOUL (AFP) - President Kim Young-Sam Saturday appointed a former unification minister and known liberal to his old post, pledging to push shead with his reform policy.

Mr. Kim named Lee Hong-Koo, vice president of the vernment Advisory Council on Democratic and Peaceful Unification, to succeed Lee Young-Dun, who became the new prime minister Friday, the spokesman said. Mr. Kim also rejected resignations submitted by all 23 of the other cabinet members and returned them to their posts. "The cabinet change was only to fill the double post of unification minister and deputy prime minister vacated by the promotion of Lee Yung-Duk," the spokesman said. There had been speculation that Mr. Kim might carry out a wider cabinet restruffle to placate public anger over the sacking of the popular prime minister, Lee Hoi-Chang, earlier this mouth. Mr. Lee Hoi-Chang, who once led King Young-Sam's anti-graft campaign as chief auditor, was backed in what some observors said was a power struggle among the ruling camp. But Mr. Kim took pains in dismissing criticism that the sacking of the reform-minded Lee Hoi-Chang was evidence that he was lapsing into past authoritarianism. "We must keep up with our efforts to push through with reforms." Mr. Kim said at his first meeting with the new cabinet.

3 soldiers die in N. Ireland fire

BELFAST (R) -- Three soldiers died and eight others were injured when fire swept through a barracks in Northern Ireland Saturday. Security sources said the blaze, in the western town of Magherafelt, was believed to have started accidentally in the soldiers' wood-built quarters, trapping several of them as ammunition exploded in the intense heat, Survivors said the accommodation block was engulfed in flames within minutes. The victims were members of the province's Royal Irish Regiment, which operates alongside the British army in its war against the Irish Republican Army (IRA). The soldiers were resting between anti-guerrilla patrols when the fire broke out. The barracks has been attacked several times by the IRA, but security chiefs do not believe there was any terrorist involvement this time. An army spokeswoman said: "It does not look as if the fire was started intentionally. A full investigation is under way to determine

Peter Seller's widow dead at 39

LOS ANGELES (R) - Actress Lynne Frederick, the 39-year-old widow of the late British comedian Peter Sellers. was found dead in her bed this week, officials said. Although further tests were planned after an autopsy failed to determine the cause of death, coroner's investigators said there was no evidence of foul play or suicide. "We're investigating this as a natural death," said Scott Carrier, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County Coroner's office. Ms. Frederick, Seller's fourth wife, died in her bed Wednesday in her West Los Angeles home. Her mother found her body that night still under the covers, Mr. Carrier said. U.S. seek total trade embargo against Haiti

UNITED NATIONS (AP) -The United States has circulated a resolution within the Security Council that would impose a total trade embargo against Haiti and punish its military rulers.

U.S. diplomats said they were sending copies of the draft to the other 14 members of the council. They hoped the resolution will be adopted next The Council already has imposed an oil and arms embargo against Haiti, the poorest nation in the western hemisphere. The new sanctions would ban all trade, except for food and medicine. The resolution would also give key military and police officials 15 days to leave office of the country, before the total embargo would take effect. U.S. diplomats said army chief Gen. Raoul Cedras, his Chief of Staff Philippe Biamphy and Port-Au-Prince Police Chief Michel Francois should step down.

There is a basic consensus on the Security Council for passage of the sanctions resolutions." U.S. Ambassador Madeleine K. Albright told reporters. "We are not alone in being frustrated, irritated and furious about what has been going on in Haiti,"

The tougher sanctions would target Haiti's military leaders. The measures include a travel ban on about 600 key Haitian military and police figures and their families, a possible freeze on the Haitjan leadership's overseas assets, and a ban on all non-commercial flights.

The aviation ban is intended to stop illicit drug trafficking

Food, fuel, medicine and humanitarian supplies would be exempt from the embargo. The trade cutoff also would exempt mangoes, a Haitian export, for fear that mango trees would be cut down for firewood if they did not yield a cash crop.

In a U.S. policy shift, the draft resolution drops earlier references to required steps by ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide and puts no pressure on him. U.S. diplomats said two more centres would be established in Haiti to process claims for political asylum.

Under the Bush administration when the embargo first was imposed, the United States insisted on a special exemption for goods assembled in Haiti from U.S. materials and then sent back to the United States.

Clothing, softballs and baseballs were the major items. Meanwhile the Haitian military Friday blocked a United Nations civilian team from investigating reports of killings in a hamlet in a northern region. The five-member team was shouted at by dozens of townspeople, many wielding machetes, and surrounded by about 30 soldiers as it attempted to visit the hamlet of Bassin

The hamlet has been sealed off by authorities since an alleged attack earlier this month on the military outpost in Petit Bourg.

A source close to the military, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said this week that more than 40 people were killed in a military sweep earlier this month in the remote northern region. The U.N. team has been in the area since Wednesday investigating the

did not give a reason why the team was turned back, but soldiers told Associated Press journalists attempting to cross into the region that they needed written permission from the regional military commander and warned that the area was a battle zone.

The soldiers said Communist rebels were operating in this remote wooded area, but human rights advocates have previously questioned military claims, saying they provided a pretext for repression.

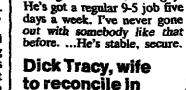

Travellers in the area Friday reported killings and homes burned down in the hamlet, but no figures were given. Soldiers said they were merely defending themselves from re-

Everton close to relegation after 40 years in top flight

LONDON (R) — Everton, one of the traditional "big five" of English soccer, moved closer to relegation from the premier league when they lost 3-0 to Leeds Saturday.

And Tottenham, another fallen member of English soccer's aristocracy, are also deep in trouble after losing 2-1 at London rivals Wimbledon.

Everton fell into the bottom three for the first time this season after their heavy defeat at Leeds and 40 years in the top flight will end next week if they lose their last match of the season at home to Wimbledon. Even a draw may not be enough to save them.

Everton and Tottenham were the only relegationthreatened teams who played and lost, as Sheffield United and Southampton both won and Manchester City and Oldham both drew.

Sheffield United beat Newcastle 2-0 while Mathhew le Tissier inspired Southampton to a 4-1 win over Aston Villa with a masterly display and two priceless goals.

Oldham drew 0-0 with Sheffield Wednesday, while Man-chester City held Chelsea to a 2-2 draw after trailing 2-0 after only 19 minutes.

Despite losing at Sheffield United, Newcastle clinched a UEFA Cup place for next season as Arsenal, the only team who could overtake them and finish third, lost 2-0 at home to West Ham.

Stich into Munich semis

Michael Stich, the world's second-ranked player, reached the semifinals of the BMW Open Friday by battling past South Africa's Wayne Ferreira in a ragged 6-4, 6-7 (3-7), 7-6 (7-1) match.

Stich, hoping to become the first German to capture the tournament since Rolf Gehring in 1980, needed to rally in the third set to pull out a victory against the 22-year-old South After going down a break in the third set, Stich trailed 6-5 before he earned a rebreak and set up the tiebreaker. "That was a crummy, badly played match," the German said. "I'm not moving freely,

I'm too tight." Stich routed the eighth-seed in the tiebreaker, but he converted match point without hitting a shot. Ferreira's last hope disappeared when he was penalised a point for banging his racket on the clay court.

Graduate Careers in Financial Journalism

Reuters is the leading international news and business information organisation. Using the latest technology, it is supplies the global business community and news media with a wide range of products, including real-time financial data, transaction systems, trading room systems, access to numeric and textual historica databases, news and news pictures.

We are now looking for graduates, either leaving university this summer or perhaps one to two years into their first job, to join our journalist training scheme, which will this year be geared to our economic news and analysis service.

Beginning in September, the scheme will comprise seven weeks practical training in London, followed by experience on the economic news desks and reporting units as well as specialist instruction in the financial markets. Trainees will then be assigned back to the Middle East. This represents an excellent career opportunity for graduates (most probably in economics or maths) who can combine an interest in the international financial markets with the ability to write with flair and accuracy in English and Arabic while meeting strict deadlines. The rewards will be attractive, with a competitive salary

14 jailed for conspiracy in Sudan

KHARTOUM (AFP) — Fourteen opposition figures, including the army's former supreme commander, have been sentenced to between two and 10 years in jail for conspiring to topple the government, judicial officials said Saturday. A special civil tribunal announced it had sentenced nine out of 17 people tried in absentia to 10 years for conspiring against the government of Omar Al Bashir's. They included former army Commander-in-Chief General Fathi Ahmad Ali, former security chief General Al Hadi Bushra, and former deputy Chief of Staff General Abdul Rahman Saeed. They were charged with sending teams to Lebanon for explosives training in order to carry out sabotage and assassinations inside Sudan as a precursor to a coup. The remaining eight tried in their absence were acquittted. Five of the nine defendants present in court, who were arrested in May, were jailed for between two and seven years. The remaining four were acquitted.

Bomb defendants' sentencing delayed

NEW YORK (R) — The sentencing of the four men convicted of bombing the World Trade Centre has been delayed until May 25, federal prosecutors said. The sentencing had been set for Wednesday and a clerk for U.S. District Judge Kevin Duffy said the delay was due to "administrative reasons." However, the postponement was announced just before Tuesday's arguments before the second circuit court of appeals as to whether Judge Duffy ruled properly in denying the defendants' wish to be represented by lawyer William Kunstler. The outcome of the session could have delayed the

Swedish airplane bomb threat was hoax

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Passengers on a British Airways flight were briefly delayed Saturday while police determined that a telephone bomb threat was a hoax. "We received the bomb threat two minutes before the plane landed," police spokeswoman Inger Jonsson-Duf said of the plane at Stockholm's Arlanda airport. "But the threat was apparently a hoax." The threat against the London-to-Stockholm airliner was telephoned to British Airways' reservation office in Newcastle. England, and passed on by air traffic controllers to Stockholm, an airline spokeswoman said. "The captain of the plane was unaware of the threat until contacted by the airport officials," said Birgitta Rambring of the Arlanda police. Passengers were prevented from disembarking for about 30 minutes because of the threat. They left the plane by 3 p.m. and were questioned in the terminal, and bomb-sniffing dogs were searching the luggage, police said. The aircraft had 66 passengers and a crew of seven abroad. of seven abroad.

Sudan central bank damaged by fire

KHARTOUM (AP) - Sudan's central bank was gutted in a fire that broke out before dawn Saturday and raged for five hours, fire officials said. There were no reports of injuries. Bank authorities said in a statement that furniture and equipment had been lost in the blaze but that cash and important documents in the bank's safe were spared. It was the fourth major fire in the Sudanese capital in the past two months. The state-owned Bank of Khartoum was seriously damaged in a fire last month, and privately owned packaging and perfume companies also were destroyed. An official with the fire brigade said the central bank lacked proper safety controls and had insufficient fire-fighting equipment. The government appointed a committee to investigate the cause of the blaze and determine losses.

'China supplying chemicals to Irag'

DAMASCUS (AFP) — An Iraqi Kurdish opposition group on Saturday alleged China was supplying Iraq with chemical weapons through a third country. Kurdish police intercepted on the night of April 17 two trucks carrying 19 tonnes of sodium phosphate used to make mustard gas and chemical weapons," a statement by the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan (PUK) said. The chemicals were smuggled into Iraq through a "neighbouring" third country, according to the statement received here by AFP which did not identify the country. The truck drivers "admitted during questioning" they were trying to transport the chemicals through Kurdish-controlled northern Iraq to regions controlled by the Iraqi central government.

S. Korea plans direct air routes to Israel

-SEOUL (AP) - South Korea is working to establish direct air routes to Israel and five other nations by June, the foreign ministry said Friday. South Korea expects to conclude agreements with Morocco, Argentina, Uzbekistan, Bulgaria, and South Africa, along with Israel, ministry officials said. The South Korean government is near agreement on establishing a Seoul-Tel Aviv route, they said.

Police kill 7 suspects in southern Egypt

CAIRO (AP) - Police killed seven suspected extremists in a dawn ambush Saturday in southern Egypt, security officials said. It was the heaviest blow against the militants since Feb. 1, when police killed seven suspected extremists from southern Egypt in a Cairo raid. The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said police encircled the militant's hideout early Saturday in the town of Tahta in Sohag province, 420 kilometres south of Cairo. The men were killed as they tried to shoot their way out, the officials said.

Military court jails Egyptian reporter

CAIRO (AP) - A military court on Saturday convicted a reporter from an opposition newspaper for revealing military secrets about U.S.-Egyptian manoeuvres and sentenced him to a year in jail. Abdul Sattar Abu Hussein, 32, who works for Al Shaab newspaper, also was ordered to pay a fine of 500 Egyptian pounds ($150). It was the first time in recent Egyptian history that a military court sentenced a reporter for a newspaper story. Military prosecutors declined comment, saying they could not speak about court rulings. The case involved an article Mr. Abu Hussein wrote on April 1 saying that joint U.S.-Egyptian manoeuvres, held every other year and code named Bright Star, would be expanded in 1995 to include Britain and Germany. The military prosecutor's office charged him with revealing military secrets. He was detained April 3 for three days, but released on bail during the three-week trial.

Syria holds family members of late dissident

NICOSIA (AP) - Syrian authorities are holding 11 relatives and friends of former strongman Salah Jadid, ousted by President Hafez Al Assad in 1970 then imprisoned until he died in captivity last fall, former prisoners and family members say. They were arrested immediately after Jadid's death aged .63 after 23 years in Damascus' Al Mezze prison, because family members opened his coffin, apparently seeking to arrange an independent autopsy to determine the cause of death. Hakam Fayyez, a former dissident who spent 25 years in Syrian prisons until his release last year, told the Associated Press that the family had been warned by Syrian security authorities not to press for an independent examination. Nine of the men are Salah Jadid's nephews and the other two are family friends, he said. Mahmoud Jadid, a family member who fled Syria 22 years ago and now lives in Algeria, told the AP the Damascus authorities arrested the men, including his sons Nidal and Salah, Aug. 23, 1993, and have held them without

Japanese foreign minister due here this week

By a Jordan Times Staff Reporter

AMMAN — Japanese Foreign Minister Koji Kakizawa is scheduled to visit Jordan this week as part of a Middle East tour, his first after assuming office last week, diplomats said Saturday.

The visit is seen as a reflection of the importance Japan attaches to the Middle East peace process, given the fact that it comes so soon after Mr. Kakizawa, a diplomatturned-politician, was sworn in last week as a member of the government of Tsutomo

His Majesty King Hussein, His Royal Highness Crown Prince Hassan, Prime Minister Abdul Salam Majali and other Jordanian officials are expected to hold talks with Mr. Kakizawa.

A diplomatic source said the minister's talks in Amman would deal with "bilateral relations, mutual cooperation in various fields and the current situation in the Middle East.

"It is expected that the minister would make a significant and substantial announcement on the bilateral level while in Jordan," said the source, who declined to be identified. The source also declined to elaborate. Mr. Kakizawa is scheduled to being his May 2-8 Middle East visit in Egypt and then proceed to Israel and the occupied territories before arriving in Jordan for a twoday visit on May 5. He will leave the Middle East on May 8 after talks in Damas-

While in the occupied territories he will meet with Palestinian leaders there.

The main theme of the visit is expected to be an assessment of the 29-month-old Arab-Israeli peace negotiations and the Japanese role in the multilateral phase of the peace process. Tokyo chairs the multilateral working group on the environment and is vice-chairman of the working groups on water and regional economic cooperation. In this capacity, Japan is expected to contribute to developing means and mechanisms to protect the environment and also to address the chronic water shortage in the Middle East.

Japanese officials have said that their country wants to shed its sole image as a donor and is seeking a higherprofile political role in the international scene in the wake of the unfolding of the "new world order" in the post-Soviet Union era.

Jordanian-Japanese relations have been traditionally strong and Japanese leaders have affirmed that they appreciated the Kingdom's efforts towards self-reliance through economic readjustment. The Tokyo government has extended significant help to the Kingdom's economic readjustment. During the Gulf crisis, Japan extended assistance worth $750 million to Jordan.

A witness, described as a friend of the victim, told police that after attending a wedding in Irbid, they went to look for a taxi to take them home.

While waiting for a taxi, the witness told police, Issa S. drew a gun be was carrying and pointed it to his head and pushed the trigger thinking the safety pin was on. According to the witness, a bullet was fired and struck the man in the head, killing him instantly.

woman was stabbed to death in Irbid on Friday by her brother for alleged adultery, a Civil Defence Department (CDD) report said.

The woman, identified as Aysheh S., received several stabs in the chest and neck inflicted by her brother who surrendered to police immediately after the incident, a CDD official said.

The official told the Jordan Times that the woman had been divorced three months ago and the brother accused her of adultery.

In his testimony to police and CDD officials, the brother, who was not identified, said his family asked him to kill his sister to "cleanse the family honour," after they were informed by relatives that the woman was having an affair with someone. He told police he took a knife, went to his house where his sister lived and stabbed her.

The British claim bolstered a U.S. campaign against Iran for allegedly sponsoring "terror-, ism" and is likely to sharpen growing international efforts to force Tehran to rein in its extremists.

The Tehran Times daily, which usually reflects Iranian foreign ministry policy, de-clared in an editorial: "Western powers. Britain among them, cannot plead ignorance when it comes to the terrorist nature of anti-Iranian groups they harbour in the West.'

Excerpts from the editorial in the English-language newspaper were reported by the official Islamic Republic News Agency (IRNA).

The British allegations were made Thursday, when U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher was in London en route for the Middle East.

Mr. Christopher weighed in the next day in Cairo, where he declared his "deep anger at the continued terrorism projected by Iran.'

Iran's Foreign Ministry has called the British accusation "totally groundless."

Bardot appeals to end bull festival

RIO DE JANEIRO (AFP) -French animal rights activist Brigitte Bardot has issued an appeal to end the annual Festival of Bulls in which the animals are let loose and hunted down by residents in some Brazilian villages. "The annual celebration of the horrible Festival of Bulls this year has again shocked and disgusted international public opinion," the former actress said in an April 26 letter to President Itamar Franco and the governor of the state of Santa Catarina. The letter from the Brigitte Bardot Foundation said the Easter week custom of starving bulls and letting them free to be stoned and tortured before being slaughtered by villagers in southern Brazil was "unbearable cruelty" inflicted by "degenerate Brazilians" in the name of an ancestral custom.

Man jailed for 28 years in videotaped rape case

LONDON (R) - A 43-year old man who videotaped himself raping young girls was sentenced to 28 years in jail in what the judge said was the longest term he had ever given. Adrian Mole, from Dorset in southern England, was found guilty of 10 charges of rape and one of attempted buggery. The court had been told Mr. Mole forced two girls to have sex and then threatened to disfigure them if they reported him. The two victims, now in their 20s. said the attacks started when they were under 16, the age of consent, with one girl only 11. Jailing Mr. Mole, Judge Martin Tucker said: "This was not just rape, it was torture you were getting your satisfaction from. This is the longest sentence I have imposed or have heard of being imposed in a case of this kind," the judge

Sex-change couple 🔒 appeal to the duseu

LONDON (R) — A couple on my love after both having sex change operations have cappealed to Oueen Elizabeth to support their campaign to marry under their new identities, a British newspaper said Saturday. Although they are legally allowed to marry. Janeen Newham and David Willis would have to assume their old genders for the wedding ceremony as British statute does not recognise sexchange surgery. Newham, 47, would be addressed as the groom, not the bride, because she was born a man. Willis would be asked whether he wanted to take his girlfriend as his lawfully wedded husband. The couple, who met five years ago just before Newham's operation to become a woman, told the Daily Mirror they had appealed in desperation to the queen to take up their case. We want to be married in a dignified manner, as is considered for non transsexuals." said the letter to the queen, written by Janeen, who as John Newham worked as a trawler captain. "We seek only that we address each other in sincerity. I to take David as my husband and he to take the as his wife." The newspaper did not say whether Buckingham Palace had responded to the letter. "We've been through all the nastiness, the nuisance calls, the vandalism, the stares," said Willis, who has an eight-yearold daughter from his life as a woman. "What we want is to be happy together and we are prepared to come our into the

A crowd of about 500 spectators watched the execution from 30 metres away. The scene was only 150 metres from the jewellery shop where the two Syrians murdered its owners, brothers Ghassan Antonious, 42, and 23, 1992. The victim's elder brother. Salim Antonious, wept as he heard soldiers say the hangings were a fact.

"My brothers are dead long
